

Attachment in Substance Misuse, Depression & a Control Group

Can you help us?

Researchers at the university of Oxford want to better understand the attachment styles (how a person develops, maintains and experiences close relationships) of people with substance misuse and depression.

People aged 18 years or over with or without experience of substance misuse and depression are invited to complete an online questionnaire (approximately 20 minutes).

We hope this will help us understand how services can better support people with these difficulties.
